I'm a lucky person. I have the privilege of ringing the bell and being the first to officially welcome you all to Bethel College. For some, this is welcome back. For others, it is welcome to your new college home. Whether you are returning after several or many [illegible] unique company of people. As I look a[illegible] faces, from where you've come, the s[illegible] prayers you speak. We are all different.

On this day, one th[illegible] that although we are at a college 11[illegible] this group—its here for the very fir[illegible] college life. Every year you get to star[illegible] how fun. For a college like Bethel, [illegible]did advantage. Reconnecting. Ma[illegible]

Beginning again.

Several weeks ago[illegible]'t seem to shut off the energy, I took a[illegible] was quiet. The air was heavy, fille[illegible] It was a long tree-shadowed evening, [illegible]ugust. I heard the hum of cicadas in th[illegible] "Jesus Loves Me in a kazoo band ba[illegible]

As I walked I was th[illegible] returning faculty and staff and our se[illegible] this opening convocation many t[illegible]citement, freshness, urgency? How will this year be for you? Are you ready to lead?

I thought about our newcomers, especially our new students. You are an accomplished group. What can I say or do to make you feel welcome, to calm the anxiety of those first day jitters, to let you know how glad we are that you are here, and to assure you that this is now your College, too.

I thought about this College. How it will absorb all of the varied talents and wonderful personalities in this room this year. How it will be reformed by your ideas, your imaginations, your ambitions. How it will imprint on all of us, yet again, its remarkable and resilient credo that learning is not learning without faith.

I thought about the Green. The Green, here on campus. I found myself standing right at its edge facing the stone Chisolm Trail marker just outside this building: the one that describes the knoll on which this campus rests as part of that place "destined to become the breadbasket of the world." I thought, that is some responsibility.

It was the best of times, it was the worst of times. The world faced violence, struggle and change, the United States faced war in Iraq, political change at home, and the end of a decade of 'Friends. At Bethel, things were much the same....

Volleyball

The 2003 Thresher volleyball season was one of excitement and success. The Threshers finished fourth in the KCAC. The early season saw tournaments in Branson, MO as well as the Bethel College Classic, in which the team took a share of the title with a record of 3-1.

Conference honors went to Jamie Kessler and Jill Rundquist as repeat First Team members, and Mindy Pfannenstiel as a repeat Second Team member. 2003 was the final year for three seniors: Jamie Kessler, Danielle Billings, and Kira Kindall

Building on Success

FOOTBALL

The 2003 edition of the Bethel College football team was much different in both size and outcome from the previous year. This season saw a much smaller group, however that group outplayed both opponents and expectations. Coming off consecutive 1-8 seasons, the Threshers quickly matched and exceeded that total on their way to a 4-5 season, just narrowly missing a season over .500.

All-conference honors went to Peter Garibaldi as First Team kick and punt returner. Second team honors went to Robert Lopez for the offensive line, and Garibaldi as wide reciever and utility player. Honorable mention went to Simon Atilano, Phillip Barron, Victor Flores, Greg Grayson, Chris Hardin, Dusty Herndon, Reggie Johnson, Orlando Rayfield, Ryan Shepard, and Avery Smith.

Women's Soccer

The women Threshers of 2003 returned again to the soccer field to conquer the soccer world. In head coach Troy Fowler's final season, the Threshers went 1-8 in conference, and 3-14 overall. The team graduates only four seniors. The highlight of the conference season came on an overtime goal by senior Kate Becker to beat Sterling.

Second team all-conference honors went to seniors Kate Becker, Newton, and Jenny Kellogg, Valley Center. Honorable Mention honors went to Mariah Thompson, Newton.

Men's Soccer

The 2003 edition of men's soccer at Bethel was a team that had individual success both on the field and off. The Threshers placed three team members on All-Conference teams. Joe Penner and Joel Gaeddert were both named to the Second-Team All-Conference while Curtis Shoup was named as an honorable mention.

The Threshers also recieved honors for three members of the team as NAIA Academic All-American. Joe Penner, Zach Unruh, and Kris Hiebner all showed their skills both on the field, and in the classroom. The Threshers lose only two seniors to graduation, and are looking forward to the year to come.

Renewing the tradition

Cross Country

The 2003 fall sports season dawned a new era for Thresher Athletics. With the addition of Cross Country to the varsity sports line-up, the Threshers renewed a long standing tradition of running at Bethel.

After more than a decade without varsity running, the team was brought back six members strong.

The team made the transition from club sport to varsity.

Former Bethel runner Marc Friesen agreed to lead the team into the new era. Friesen is no stranger to the athletic department due to his involvment with the Bethel track team.

Women's Basketball

The 2003-04 Bethel women's basketball team featured seven seniors and a talented underclass. The experience turned into success on the court as the women advanced to the second game of the KCAC tournament. A highlight of the conference season came in a double overtime victory over Tabor College 90-83 at Thresher Gym.

Postseason conference awards went to senior Shelley Haug as a repeat First Team All-Conferrence selection. Senior Tiffany DeHaven was also selected honorable mention.

Men's Basketball

With a tough act to follow, how would the 2003-04 Bethel men's basketball team respond? By working hard, playing tough, and becoming a team that was just as dangerous as the previous year's record-setting team. With a fourth place finish in a very tough KCAC race, the Bethel men proved they deserved the respect they got.

Postseason conference awards went to five different players. Adrian Howie was a unanimous first team all-conference selection. Jayson Artaz and Ryan Lohfink were each named honorable mention. Ryan Gerber was named to the All-Defensive team, and Tyler Weinbrenner was named to the All-Freshman team.

Beginning a legacy

Golf

The 2003-2004 athletic season saw a new kid on the block for the Threshers. For the first time, Bethel College fielded a varsity golf team. The team of five players and two coaches spent the fall season playing some tournaments and getting to know each other better.

The spring season was the meat and potatoes of the schedule, as the Threshers began a legacy and built a tradition and history for next year. With only one senior graduating, next years team should be on the right track to success.

Track & Field

The 2004 Men's and Women's track and field raced off to a fast start with 22 members. The year started with the indoor season, where Kurtzs Holbert qualified and finished 29th at the NAIA Indoor National Championships in the Triple Jump.

The outdoor season saw many more meets as the Threshers tried to qualify for the National Outdoor Championships. Senior Chad Unrau, Goessel provisionally qualified in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles, and the 110-meter high hurdles.

Jermey Schrag, a senior from Buhler, Kansas became the first Bethel Student to win the AFA National Tournament in any event. Beyond that personal sucess, the squad enjoyed continued dominance as one of the top forencics programs in the State of Kansas. The squad as pictured below enjoyed the year and is looking forward to more success in the years to come.

Yes, this is us, the team, the squad, the Thresher Yearbook. Gina Neill, Jeff Graber, Sam Schrag and our coach, Troy Fowler.

We spent many hours on this beautiful book. We made it together for your viewing and memorial treasure. We hope that this wonderful yearbook will be remembered for a life time and you'll be able to have physical evidence that you did in fact attend Bethel College with hundreds of other close personal friends.

This is our technical god and Jostens Representative, Thane Chastain. If it weren't for an employee like him, we would n't have a yearbook at all this year.

He introduced us to elite yearbook programs, and helped us in minutes with picture issues that took us hours to create.

He is really a yearbook hero.

In the pages that follow, there are pictures of students and faculty engaging in the scholarship and education in which Bethel prides itself. From Fine Arts to Fine Science, from Math to Nursing, from History to Foreign Language, and much more.

Hopefully, all of you see something that reminds you of good times, good friends, and late nights, all hallmarks of a Bethel Education.

Here We Toiled

The Library is always good when it is time to focus

The Krehbiel Science Center remains the newest edition to campus this year

While few would suggest that academics are the most enjoyable part of their Bethel experience, the places where we have spent many a long afternoon listening to lectures, engaging ideas, texts, even fellow students, and sharing our thoughts with one another do worm their way into our hearts. These structures are tied to our memories just as firmly as the faces of professors and the information we gained within their walls.

The Center of Campus and easily the most recognizable landmark on the Bethel scene, the Administration Building remains a monument to Mennonite Folly in the community.

Day After Day

ıe Old Science Building remains in ıod shape, and remains the bane of ɔmputer students in two majors.

Memorial Hall, Home of Nursing, athletic training, concerts, intermurals and graduation is still one of the more imposing buildings on campus.

The Fine Arts Center seems almost misplaced alongside the tall elegent buildings which also surround the green. However, this home of plays, musicals, operas, and convocations uncounted remains a unique feature on the campus.

Arvis Averette challenged the entire student body to remember the legecay of racism both at Bethel College, in the United States and around the world. # Campus Life

Campus Spiritual Life

Joe Penner watches seniors reflect on their Bethel experience in Chapel.

Bethel is a place with rich opportunities to explore an experience faith. Weekly chapel services are times of reflection and joy for many students on campus, and listening to Chris Shaw play the organ (below) is a sensation that will remain with many students throughc their lives. Here the community has a chance to gath and experience God in many differnt styles, words, a visions.

Beyond Chapel, Spiritual life on Campus this school year was reflected in numerous bible studies, a weekly prayer group, hymn singing, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, and the tri-collegiate discussion group between Bethel, Hesston, and Tabor. Also, classes such as Basic Issues of Faith and Life (pictured below) offer all students the chance to explore their own faith perspective and process the difficult questions surrounding God, religion, and faith formation.

A Religious Experience

Amy Barker (above) served her first year as campus pastor at Bethel this year. Her enthusiasm and energy brought life and vitality to the campus . Her vision of committed faith and personal integrity have been much appreciated throughout the year. We hope that she enjoys many years to come serving the Bethel Community.

Kara Schmidt is one of many students who offered their thoughts and prayers during chapel.

Sharing faith over the supper table is a time honored tradition in many faith traditions, and Bethel is no exception to this general rule. Here students in the Vocation Seminar Class enjoy the fellowship of a strong community and the delicious cooking of Patty Shelly.

Students for Social Change

This year Students for Social Change (SSC) continued its work for peace and social justice. The organization, which consisted of 15-20 active members, planned and participated in many different activities throughout the year that addressed a wide variety of social and political issues. With war and violence continuing in Iraq, SSC sought to be a proactive voice for peace. In November, the group collaborated with Shalom Mennonite Church in Newton to organize "87 Minutes of Peace," an evening of music and fellowship that took its name from President Bush's $87 billion request to continue war operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. Many different groups performed music at the event, including Bethel band Sour Mash, and men's octet Open Road. Donations were also taken at the event for two peace organizations, Christian Peacemaker Teams (CPT) and Offender-Victim Ministries (OVM). In March, several SSC members made a trip to New York City to participate in a mass demonstration and rally against the U.S.-led occupation of Iraq. SSC tackled other issues besides the Iraq war. Several subcommittees were formed to cover these different issues. One subcommittee examined racism on-campus. Another subcommittee looked at gender issues at Bethel. As in previous years, a group traveled to Ft. Benning, Georgia, in November to protest the existence of the Western Hemisphere Institute for Security Cooperation (WHISC), formerly known as the School of Americas (SOA). The WHISC is a school run by the U.S. Army that trains Latin American soldiers. Many graduates of the school have been implicated in human rights abuses in their home countries.

Some members of the group contributed to the Democratic Socialism Club's effort to lobby against the U.S.A. Patriot Act. In February, these students presented a resolution to the North Newton City Council that opposed certain portions of the Act on the grounds that they threaten civil liberties and Constitutional rights. The Council eventually passed a letter instead of a resolution.

Four members of SSC traveled to Eastern Mennonite University in February for the annual Intercollegiate Peace Fellowship (ICPF) conference, a gathering of students and faculty committed to peace and nonviolence. Next year's conference will be held at Bethel. Planning has begun for that event.

SSC also did some fun things together, such as making apple cider at Fall Fest and preparing and eating food at potluck dinners.

Concerned students, committed to working toward the revocation of the USA Patriot Act gathered monthly to participate in the North Newton City Council meeting. Here several students head off from Schultz Student Center to participate in the democratic process and express their opinions on what they see as an unjust and inappropriate law.

Democratic Socialism Club

Democratic Socialism Club Members, pictured are Anna Weaverdyck, Heidi Holliday, Andy Gingrich, Emily Kerbs, Joseph Penner Kelly O Reily, Dan Regier, Karey French, Joel Goering, and Jesse Nathan.

The Democratic Socialism Club entered another year full of ideas and pectations. The club, which was formed three years ago, is primarily focused promoting projects and ideas consistent with the principles of Democratic cialism. This emphasizes community organizing, labor issues nd educational efforts. This year, DSC worked on several projects, including opening nes of connection with the local hispanic community. Several members met with y community members to find out how Bethel College can bridge the divide between s population and the Newton hispanic community. Additionally, DSC sponsored two mpus-wide convo events.

First, a video showing of Noam Chomsky's "Manufacturing Consent" was own. This documentary highlighted issues of conformity and media control public opinion on the current American system. Second, a showing of Michael loore's "The Big One" a film emphasizing labor issues and the increasing tendency of merican corporations to send jobs overseas for larger profits, was held in the spring..

Another major project for DSC this year was its effort to get the North Newton ty Council to pass a resolution against the USA Patriot Act. DSC, along with the CLU and 200 other communities, states and organizations nation-wide, found is law to be counter to the ideals of freedom and liberty inherent in the American nstitution. After canvassing the community to educate the population on the law nd encouraging active partcipation in the debate on the issue, students presented their solution to the City Council. After several months of deliberations and community gagement of the issue, the City Council resolved to sign and pass a letter on behalf the community, to be sent to the Governor, Senators and Representatives of Kansas. he letter expresses the concerns of the community on the issue, and encourages these overning officials to explore ways to stop the erosion of liberty.

Next year, the group plans to focus even more on reading books, discussing the sues and educating the community and the Bethel campus on the need for serious, evolutionary action in the United States. With their ideas and their passions, they will ntinue to fight injustice.

Environmental Action Club

Environmental Action Club (EAC) went through a year of transition, changing focus, and new leadership. They managed to raise money selling roast corn at Fall Fest, and continued to advocate for sound Bethel environmental policy throughout the year. Here pictured are members Dan Regier, Anna Weaverdyck, Heidi Holliday, Kate Becker, and Jesse Nathan.

Like any other year, this year was a fun year for our club. As a club, we participated in various activities that helped us to promote the international community on the campus and the area at large in Newton and around the state. We shared the taste of international cuisine and culture with our friends here at BC during Fall Festival, International Film Festival and International Convocation. We also celebrated an International Cuisine Night, where several of us prepared a native dish from our country of origin. It was very interesting to learn about the food from different countries. We also hosted the International Film Festival for a week, where we showed movies from different parts of the world. Some club members also represented their countries with their talents at two nursing homes in the area. The residents thoroughly enjoyed the program. It was a great year for our club, as we learned to know each other and their culture.

Social Work Organization

Rachel Voth donates to Heart to Heart under the watchful eye of Club Member Lauren Gillis

Student Social Work Organization was a great success this year. Coordinators Joanna Dreier and Jarod Waltner helped lead two successful fundraisers and helped raise awareness of child abuse and poverty in Harvey County. In the Heart to Heart Fundraiser held the week of Spring Fling, the Social Work Organization managed to raise three-hundred and sixty-nine dollars for Heart to Heart, a local organization to help the victims of child sexual abuse in Harvey County. The Faculty and Staff managed to out fundraise the student body 137 dollars to 132 dollars. Also, the Organization baked and sold cookies for the annual Fall Festival fund raiser, raising money for other good causes around the area. The Organization was not all buisness of course, there were several social events including the annual Christmas party.

Student Organizers continue to be committed to doing all they can to support the community of Harvey County and all of its members.

CREATURE CLUB:

Creature Club is Bethel's own horror movie extraveganz The club meets regularly in the projection room, in Ki hiebel Auditorium, at Professor's houses, and other spool places to enjoy some of the most abysmal examples of horr movie cinematography ever created. Founder Ryan O'Rei is legend for his collection of hillariously flawed horr flicks.

However Creature Club's taste is not limited to bad movies. Other films are acceptable fair for the eccelctic tas of these movie buffs, including anime, comedy, drama, ar and other legitimate forms of cinema.

All are welcome to come enjoy the show!

Other leaders include Rae Dain and Spencer Sward.

Bethel College Kansas Association of Nursing Students

BC-KANS, the Bethel College Kansas Association of Nursing Students, is a student led organization that promotes leadership, learning and involvement in a professional organization. BC-KANS members attend the KSNS/KSNA convention each year in October, with som members attending the national conventic as well. This year, members completed several service projects which included making health kits for MCC and donating money to an orphanage in Russia.

Pre-Med Club

The Pre-Med Club is a group of Bethel Students interested in careers in the field of medicine. It allows students with various majors to gather together to listen to guest speakers (such as the gathering to the right) learn about the necessary steps to Med School and fellowship together as learners on a common path. Dwight Kreihbel is the faculty sponsor and student leadership is offered by Bryan Stucky.

The brand new Gardening Clu was a big success at Bethel this year. Since the construction of Krehbiel Science Center there has been extra space in the old Science Hall greenhouse, and these green thumbed Bethelites sprung into action. The Club grew crops all winter long, and there were many evenings at the cafeteria where these intrepid gardeners shared freshly picked salad grown with their own tender loving care.

Next year promises to be even more fruitful, and all are welcome to share in the bounty

Growing in Style!

Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgendered, and Allies

While for confidentiality reasons there are no photographs of its members, here is a new organization on campus which needs to be recognized. The GBTA is an organization formed in response to a call on campus to work ward making Bethel a more welcoming community. Up till this year Bethel was the only Mennonite College that had not formed some type of official roup to discuss, support, and act on the concerns of those on campus who o not think of themselves as heterosexual. Because of this lack, a number f concerned students felt called to open dialogue on campus and invited all tudents interested in beginning the process of dialogue to participate in this rganization. The group has met several times for discussion and educational urposes, and hopes to continue to work toward making Bethel a safe and oving environment for all of its students in the future.

Math Club

Math Club is one of the largest and most active clubs on the Bethel Campus. The group meets regularly to compete over brain teasers, share food and fellowship, and learn more about their chosen discipline.

EVERYONE ELSE

Lest you assume that the Bethel Club list is complete, let it be known that the Bethel experience is much broader than the clubs which have been included. For various reasons (including editors who moved to slowly, clubs who did not respond to E-mails, a lack of pictures or a lack of interest in being included in the yearbook) there are a number of clubs who are important parts of campus even though they are not a key part of the yearbook. A partial list of these clubs includes

American Guild of Organists
Music Educators National Conference
Bethel College Motercycle Club
Multi-Cultural Club
Amnesty International
Service Corps
Ultimate Club
Cross Country Club
Outdoor Club
Pre-Law Club
Climbing Club

to all the participants in these clubs, thank you for your part in the Bethel College experience, sorry we have no pictures of you, we ask for your understanding and your forgiveness for the lack of publicity.
